

AT PEACE

All who accept the gospel find peace with God.

ROMANS 5:1-11

We live with a basic understanding of “cause and effect.” With everything we see or experience we tend to look for some type of cause. Paul followed a similar line of logic as he walked his Roman readers through the reality of salvation and the Christian life. Sin has an effect and so does faith in Jesus.

Why is it important to find the primary cause behind some type of event? How might a person go about identifying the specific cause that created a specific event?

UNDERSTAND THE CONTEXT

ROMANS 5:1-21

Paul identified the problem in chapter 3. Sin wreaked havoc on the human race and the world in general. Jews and Gentiles alike stand condemned with no hope for a right relationship with God.

In Romans 4, Paul revealed the other side of the coin. False gods offered no help to the pagans, and the law of Moses only revealed sin; it did not remove it or free the individual from its effects. But God made sure things didn't stay that way. He shined a light in the darkness. That light was His Son.

Faith has always been God's standard for justification. Abraham had believed and been justified by his faith centuries before the law. Later, David testified to the role of faith in salvation. The entire sacrificial system pointed to the Lamb of God who would come and provide the final sacrifice. Ultimately, the faith of the ancients became realized in Jesus Christ. Anyone who put his or her faith in Jesus and His work on the cross would be justified in God's sight.

That was the cause of salvation; in Romans 5, Paul turned his attention to the effects of justification. Because God has declared us righteous, we now live in peace with God. The human race's war with God can end. In addition, we now experience hope and purpose for this life and the next.

Paul pointed out that the chaos caused by the first Adam had been replaced by the peace produced by the second Adam—Jesus Christ. Because we are at peace with God, we can live at peace with one another.

Read Romans 5:1-11, identifying the things a believer gains through faith in Jesus Christ. How are these benefits of salvation connected?

KEY DOCTRINE: Salvation (Justification)

Justification brings the believer unto a relationship of peace and favor with God (Gal. 3:13).

JUSTIFIED WITH BENEFITS (ROM. 5:1-5)

¹ Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ: ² By whom also we have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God. ³ And not only so, but we glory in tribulations also: knowing that tribulation worketh patience; ⁴ And patience, experience; and experience, hope: ⁵ And hope maketh not ashamed; because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us.

VERSES 1-2

Therefore is a transitional word that indicates how one thing leads to another. The word appears in three significant places in Romans (5:1; 8:1; 12:1). Paul had already outlined the path to justification by faith. Now, he transitioned to the effects of justification.

Paul shifted from terms like “you” and “they” (which appear more than 70 times in the first four chapters) to the first-person pronoun we. Where Paul had previously addressed those outside the faith, he was now focusing on believers who had been justified and needed to understand how that changed their lives.

The first benefit of justification is peace. This includes the absence of conflict but goes farther by emphasizing completeness or unity. Those who trust Christ can experience peace with God.

As a result of peace with God, believers have access to God. Instead of being in a state of hostility toward God and separated from Him, they now can approach Him as Father.

Paul also reminded the Romans that this was all the result of God’s grace in their lives. They had no standing of their own, but they stood in the unmerited favor that God poured out on those who lived by faith. In addition, this grace—and the access it provides—gives individuals hope of the glory of God. Previously, Paul had noted that the human race fell short of God’s glory (3:23). Now, however, those who have been justified reflect God’s glory and find hope for this life and the next.

What is the relationship between peace and hope? How do they complement each other?

VERSES 3-5

Justification will not remove all the tribulations in our lives. Paul used a Greek word that suggests suffering experienced for the sake of the gospel. In a sense, this is a specific category of suffering reserved for believers as God transforms them into His likeness.

Even when we suffer, our new relationship with God gives meaning to those challenges. James offered a similar encouragement (Jas. 1:2-4). Believers can glory in affliction because they recognize the hand of God at work in those hard times. This is not simply keeping a stiff upper lip and making lemonade out of lemons. Tribulation, Paul noted, creates patience.

Athletes put stress on their bodies through exercise and training. That work is hard but produces more strength and endurance for the competition to come. The same is true with our afflictions. The hard times we experience build spiritual muscle that helps us endure and move forward.

Endurance produces experience. The Greek term translated experience carries the idea of something being proven through a trial or hardship. Afflictions squeeze our lives and reveal ungodly actions and attitudes. As we endure, God refines those rough edges and we become more like the people God created us to be. Then our renewed character brings us full circle, back to the hope we have in Christ. This is not pie-in-the-sky optimism. It is a deeper sense of peace and trust that God has a plan for our present and our future.

The world is filled with disappointments. Focusing on disappointments can mar our character and produce despair. But the hope God produces in our lives through affliction, endurance, and character does not fall into that category. It never disappoints. It always meets us right where we are with exactly what we need.

That's because it is rooted in the love of God. When we come to Him in faith, we move from being the objects of His anger and wrath to being the recipients of His love. Paul wrote that God pours out His love on us, completely covering us. Our afflictions lead to hope, which gives us a keener sense of His love for us.

God's love is shed abroad in our hearts through the work of the Holy Ghost. In any circumstance, the Spirit will guide and direct us in the right way, helping us endure hard times and grow stronger in our faith.

JUSTIFIED THROUGH HIS DEATH (ROM. 5:6-8)

VERSE 6

Not only are humans in a perpetual state of war with God before being justified through Jesus, they are actually without strength to change their situation. No human can achieve a right relationship with God.

God's response to our helplessness was to send Jesus to die in our place.

God's response to our helplessness was to send Jesus to die in our place. He poured out His love on us, and the tangible proof of that lavish gift was the sacrifice of His Son.

Sin required the penalty of death. Without divine intervention, we would be forced to pay that price ourselves—both in this world and throughout eternity in hell. But as He did for Abraham in Moriah (Gen. 22:1-19), God provided a substitute in due time. Paul made a similar comment in Galatians 4:4-5. The relative peace of the Roman Empire, combined with a common language (Greek) and a general curiosity about religious ideas, created a perfect historical environment for the Messiah’s arrival. But it was also the perfect time because humanity was helpless.

VERSES 7-8

God did what no one could have predicted. He sacrificed His Son to rescue individuals living in rebellion against Him. That’s unheard of in human logic. A few heroes might voluntarily suffer for someone they care about, but who would endure pain to help an enemy? That’s exactly what God did. God’s radical commitment to our salvation can be traced to one motivation: his love toward us. He demonstrated that when Jesus died on the cross.

Sometimes, people are tempted to think they have to “get right” before God will accept them. But Paul was clear: We don’t have to become good enough; we can’t become good enough. Instead, God took the first step while we were still at war with Him. Even though we were yet sinners living under His wrath, Christ died for us.

The benefits of justification are great. But the cost was great as well. We must never forget that sacrifice. If we ever wonder about God’s love for us, the cross should be all the proof we need.

JUSTIFIED EQUALS RECONCILIATION (ROM. 5:9-11)

⁹ Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him. ¹⁰ For if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life. ¹¹ And not only so, but we also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement.

VERSES 9-11

Because we know we have been justified by God through faith, we can know just as surely that we will avoid His wrath. Through the death of Jesus on the cross, we have been saved from our sins. We also have been released from the condemnation that comes from living at war with God. Believers will never suffer the wrath of God because Jesus suffered as their substitute on the cross.

What does this passage teach us about God and about ourselves?

By its very nature, the term •reconciled indicates something was broken. It might be a bank statement or it could be a relationship. But something needs to be fixed.

We have been given an opportunity to begin a new relationship with God through the death of Jesus. But reconciliation involves action on both sides. We must accept God's offer by faith. If we refuse, the relationship remains hostile.

Paul reminded the Romans that Jesus' death was only part of the story. Jesus also rose from the dead. Because He is alive, our lives can be different. Salvation has both "now" and "later" aspects that reach into eternity. We are saved from the consequences of our sins by His death. But we are saved to walk in holiness through His power working in us.

God's work on our behalf through the death and resurrection of Christ is a lot to take in. He has done so much and provided so much. We can never repay His grace and love. But we can live differently. We can live out our right relationship with Him each day for the world to see.

Salvation does not make us perfect. Christians still sin and miss the mark of God's design. But that does not change our standing. Christ is still our substitute, and we are still righteous in God's eyes. That, Paul said, is reason to have joy. As we demonstrate the genuine joy God has given us, unbelievers will take notice and be interested in learning more. Joy makes our witness to the world much more effective.

Along with the benefits gained through faith in Jesus, what responsibilities are also now carried?

IN MY CONTEXT

- Peace with God results from being declared just through faith in Jesus.
- God demonstrates His love to us through the sacrificial death of Jesus.
- Believers are saved through faith in Jesus, now and forever.
